

SOCIETY AND OTHER INTERESTS OF WOMEN

SOCIETY

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the First M. E. church will entertain all members of the Missionary societies of South Bend on Tuesday afternoon at the First Methodist church parlors. The officers of the two societies will be the hostesses and a program will be given. Mrs. A. Cotton will have charge of the devotional and will give a talk on prayer. Mrs. F. P. Eastman will have a paper on "India." Mrs. H. G. Welton a paper on "Child Welfare" and Mrs. George Wyman will talk on "Tithing." Miss Esther Taylor will render several vocal solos and music will be furnished by the ladies' quartet consisting of Mrs. George Fulmer, Mrs. Guy Staples, Mrs. Grace Fink Davis and Miss Camille Butterworth. Refreshments will be served during the social hour following the program.

A paper on "How Can Family Feeling Best be Developed in Children?" will be given by Mrs. J. C. Ash Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the Mothers' department of the Progress club in the club rooms. A good attendance is desired at this meeting as plans will be made for the work of the ensuing year.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Tack were pleasantly surprised Saturday evening at their home, 610 E. Broadway st., by a few friends. The evening was spent informally with music. Piano selections were given by Miss Daisy McHenry of Mishawaka, Miss Florence Kramer, Mrs. Howard Feaser and Martin Seuss. Light refreshments were served.

Tea Table Talks

By May De Witt Talmage

FIFTY-FIFTY.

"What does the slang phrase, '50-50' mean?" I asked a group of men and women who were dining at a well-known cafe in a city of the West.

"Why it means halving things," said one. "Getting as much as you give." said another. "An even division of labor, in other words an even exchange."

How seldom we can apply that to experience in life. What a rare thing it is. Yet, sometimes we do not recognize the even exchange because it comes back to us in another coin.

"Suddenly I realized that this was the moment I had been working up to all my life," I heard a man say. He had been giving, paying out; at times it seemed as if there was nothing coming back, there was always interest, and then more interest to be paid. Then suddenly the principal came due and he found he had more capital than he had dreamed of having.

Sometimes it is like that with children. You give your life and energy to fitting them for life; training, guiding, sustaining until at times you feel like crying out that you cannot give any more. Your resources are drained, your vitality, strength, and nerves, have been taxed to the uttermost. You have given all and received nothing in return. Then suddenly something will occur, an awakening of appreciation, a coming of age to the realization of all that has been done for them, and then you realize that everything you have given and done is evened up; it's "50-50."

You may have had sorrow, more than your share you think. You have nothing but regret, the feeling of injustice that you have not merited it all. Then some day you awake to the realization that it was all for the best, that "everything works together for good." "What you do not know now you shall know hereafter." You can be quite sure it is "50-50," although, perhaps, you cannot quite make out the mathematical problem as yet.

"To have a beautiful old age you must live a beautiful youth, for we ourselves are posterity and every man is his own ancestor. I am today what I am because I was yesterday what I was." This is another case of "50-50."

Each truth that a writer acquires is a lantern which he turns full on what facts and thoughts lay already in his mind and behold all the mists and rubbish which had littered his garret become precious, every trivial fact in his private biography becomes an illustration of the new principle. Men say where did he get this? They have myriads of facts just as good, would they only get a lamp to ransack the attic with all, wrote Emerson, and it's another way of getting "50-50."

Oh, if we only apply a little philosophy with our calculations of life problems, we will find more often than we think that the sum total is "50-50."

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA TO PLAY HERE MAY 19

Musically inclined people of South Bend will welcome the announcement which came Monday through the South Bend conservatory that the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will appear in the city May 19. Concerts will be given at the Oliver opera house both afternoon and evening, and full houses are anticipated for each performance, for with the possible exception of Mme. Schumann-Heink no individual artist or aggregation of musicians has proved more popular in South Bend than the Minneapolis orchestra. The soloists will be: Graveure, bass; Cooper, contralto; Van Vleet, cellist; and Czerwony, violinist. Neither Graveure nor Cooper has been heard previously here, but it is said that both have created sensations wherever the orchestra has appeared. As for Van Vleet and Czerwony both have made warm places for themselves in the hearts of South Bend music lovers.

NEW PARCEL AGREEMENT.
Announcement that a new parcel post agreement has been entered into between the United States and the Argentine republic was received at the local postoffice Monday morning. Under this regulation liquids, oils, pastes, salves and other substances easily liquefiable may be sent by parcel post between these two countries.

Word has reached South Bend of the marriage of Miss Louise Seuss, formerly of this city, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Seuss to Clarence L. Moose. The ceremony was performed March 5 at Los Angeles, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. Moose will make their home in Los Angeles.

Tact the Key to Success

Dorothy Dix Says It Is More Potent Than Beauty or Wit.

By Dorothy Dix.

Cultivate tact, girls. It is the one quality that will carry you further in life than anything else. There is more potency in it than there is in beauty, or wit, or all the Ten Commandments.

Who are the people that we like best and form whom we will do most? Those who, in the homely old phrase, rub our fur the right way.

Who are those who succeed? The people who know how to get along with other people, those who never step on other people's toes, who conciliate rather than offend all with whom they come in contact.

It is the tactful—always the tactful. There is the earth, and the fullness thereof.

Everybody recognizes the value of tact, but the trouble is they seem to think that it comes by nature, as Dogberry thought a knowledge of reading and writing did.

Acquisition Possible.
Of course, there are a few fortunate people who are born diplomats and know instinctively just what to do or say. Theirs is the superfine brand of tact, but the balance of us can acquire a very useful, working variety of tact simply by taking a little thought and care.

There is no excuse, for instance, for people being blunderers in conversation any more than blunderers in conduct. And this is especially true of women. A woman would be ashamed to come to your house and fall over your tables, and smash your furniture, and drop every bit of china that she took up.

She uses tact in dealing with your belongings. Why shouldn't she use as much thought and care in avoiding crashing into your feelings and mutilating your pet beliefs?

The Fascination.
Yet we all know the woman for whom forbidden topics seem to have a fatal fascination. She always talks to divorcees about domestic scandals, and discusses penitentiary reforms with the wives of bank embezzlers, or tells stories about deformed people to hunchbacks, or she abuses suffrage to suffragettes, or ridicules some particular religion to a devotee of that faith.

Don't be like these tactless ones, girls. When among strangers stick to the weather or some equally innocuous topic until you can get your bearings, and find out something of the personal idiosyncrasies of the people with whom you are thrown.

When among acquaintances, think before you speak. Recall the personal history of each individual, and let the conversation dally along pleasant and flowery pathways, instead of making it a funeral march to the graveyard of some dead sorrow or disgrace.

There is no excuse for a man being a bull in the conversational china shop. But it's worse than a blunder, it is a crime for a woman to be a cow in a cut glass emporium.

Tact In Business.
And never, never feel that it is your duty to tell people unpleasant truths or correct their mistakes. That is a form of tactlessness to which only too many girls are addicted.

Cultivate tact in business. It is what draws customers to you if you are a saleswoman, and patrons if you are a professional woman, for a woman who knows how to return the soft answer that turns away wrath, and that leaves a customer mollified, or who can handle a grouchy employer without turning a hair herself finds great reward.

And when you get married, girls, tact does its great and perfect work and keeps you out of the divorce court. It is the tactful wife who knows how to feed a man before she asks him for money for a new dress; how to keep the topics off the carpet that are sure to bring on a family row, and how to jolly her husband along the road he should go instead of driving him, with a goad.

Therefore, I urge on you to cultivate tact, girls. It's a woman's best weapon in life.

SPELLING MATCH TO BE FEATURE OF PROGRAM
An old-fashioned spelling bee will be the feature of the program to be given Wednesday night by the Madison township community center. Misses Minnie Schalliol and Anna Hesch will choose sides and Earle Selner will pronounce the words.

In addition to this there will be the following musical and literary numbers: Music by the community orchestra; recitation, Clarence Beeber; recitation, Lillian Schormier; duet, Misses Schurr and Horein; recitation, Nora Andrews; address, M. W. Hunsberger; paper on "Spraying Fruit Trees," by S. P. Parker; song, Charles Louchs, Harve Whisler and Bernice Zeigler; solo, Eva Shearer.

BIRTH.
Born to Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Vance, 617 N. Scott st., a son, March 19.
